

To Joshua Smith, author of The Hands That Perform Miracles

I am 32 years old and the mother of a 15 month old son. My vitiligo has progressed rapidly in the last year. I have been worried that my son would not understand my condition and that he would not see beyond my skin. I have worried about the possible ridicule he would face when he started school. I worried that he would not be willing/able to stand up for me when they teased him about me.

But your story has touched me. It has eased my worries and brought peace to my heart. Thank you.
